a day without energy at Wismar University

On the 9th of december, I cutted of the electricity at the University of Wismar. From dusk till dawn the school was dark, cold and without internet. In a range of projects the students reply to this 'crises-situation'. The most addicted ones tried to generate electricity from water power and opened the tap on the 3rd floor, or used lemon to light the christmas tree. The more pragmatic students just took the electricity over a cable from the neighbours building, ore used bateries with yesterday's energy.
